The politicization of science is the manipulation of science for political gain. It occurs when government, business, or advocacy groups use legal or economic pressure to influence the findings of scientific research or the way it is disseminated, reported or interpreted. The politicization of science may also negatively affect academic and scientific freedom.

Currently, broadband infrastructure arises and grows on a global scale. This trend has heightened the debate about the benefits of broadband internet (Ng et al., 2013). This has caused broadband infrastructure to be of much interest and also of concern to governments and industry (Sommers, Carlson, 2000, Wieman, 1998). However, there has been increasing consensus among experts that broadband ...
